YANKS CUT NAZI ESCAPE ROAD IN ITALY

Sweeping New Labor Controls To Be Put In Effect July 1

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—Sweeping new controls over the nation's dwindling supply of male workers were ordered today by the War Manpower Commission to be placed in effect by July 1.

They provide that virtually every job-seeking man in America will be required to apply to the United States Employment Service for assignment to the war plant where he is most needed.

regardless of where that plant may be located. Employers, on the other hand, will be permitted to hire only those men referred to them by the USES.

"The successful conduct of the war now requires the channeling of all available male labor in the nation to jobs of greatest war production urgency, and the retention of such labor in those jobs," War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt declared in announcing the new program.

It extends on a nation-wide basis the WMC's voluntary program already in effect in about a dozen areas of critical labor shortage.

"We propose," McNutt declared, "to accomplish the channeling by a system of priority referral, effective throughout the nation, but varying among communities by such adaptations as may be found desirable."

Farm workers are not restricted, nor are business with eight or less employees.

McNutt said the program would make it possible for a worker anywhere in the country to "take his most useful place on the industrial firing line," adding: "This is just as important as it is for us to get our soldiers onto the firing line when and where they are needed."

He said one of the principal difficulties in recruiting men for war jobs and retaining them is "over-optimism with respect to an early ending of the war"—this causing workers to look for peace-time employment.

"I have been most disturbed by this attitude," he said. "The war is not nearly over and such sentiment is positively dangerous to the war effort."

Production needs and manpower demands may be easing up in specific plants or areas due to cutbacks but "workers who may be released in such situations are sorely needed in other plants or other areas where war production schedules are being increased. Experience in the past has shown that this easing of manpower does not result in the filling of all labor demands in critical war industries."

While some sources saw the expanded program as a move necessary because of the lack of national service legislation, McNutt said:

ALLIED FORCES NEAR ROME IN FIERCE FIGHTING

Meanwhile, U. S. Warplanes Hit Invasion Area of Europe Hardest Blow

(By The Associated Press)
The Fifth Army cut Highway 6 today near Valmontone and severed the main escape route of the retreating German Tenth Army, and fought bitterly in the ruins of Velletri and in the wooded Alban hills within sight of Rome after penetrating the stout enemy defense line.

"Hard fighting has continued all along the front," the Naples communique said. "Troops of the Fifth Army have established themselves on Monte Artemisio northwest of Velletri. This constitutes penetration into the enemy's defensive system on the Valmontone-Velletri line. Very obstinate opposition is being encountered by this penetration. The advance of the Eighth Army continues astride Highway 6." A subsequent bulletin told of cutting the highway and of fighting within Velletri.

Daniel de Luce of the AP wrote from Velletri that Americans took the town square at 5:15 P. M. yesterday. The Germans apparently recoiled. But Velletri was doomed, outflanked and surrounded from at least three sides. The Germans clung stubbornly to Valmontone, 20 miles southeast of Rome. Lanuvio and Campoleone, all key points in the defense of Rome.

Heavy Air Attack
Up to 1,500 American heavy bombers and fighters struck the heaviest single blow yet at the French invasion coast today and another great armada of 500-750 four-engine planes from Italy bombed five railway yards in Hungary and Transylvania. Mediterranean air force headquarters reported "good" results in the assaults upon rail yards at Miskolc, Szolnok and Szeged in eastern Hungary and upon Cluj and Simeria in Transylvania, the mountainous Romanian province which Germany ceded partially to Hungary in 1940.

The Mediterranean strikes were in direct tactical support of the Russian armies massing in the Carpathian slopes, German troops

TWO ARE INDICTED FOR 'GAS' THEFTS

Cleveland OPA Men Accused of Taking 12,050 Coupons

CLEVELAND, June 2.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted C. Richard Allen, former Cleveland district manager for the Office of Defense Transportation, and Robert A. Dissauer, former chief clerk of local Ration Board No. 6, on charges of purloining 12,050 "T" gasoline rationing coupons.

Both previously were accused of coupon thefts in charges filed on affidavits from Office of Price Administration investigators.

OPA and Office of Defense Transportation officials are investigating fraudulent transactions in Ration Board 6, Cleveland's largest, which OPA Attorney A. R. Fioretti said involve possibly 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline and an unestimated volume of food points.

RELEASE OF TIRE WORKERS FROM ARMY IS PREDICTED

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay of Army Service Headquarters has predicted tire workers will be released from the army and more trucks will be available for civilian use, Chairman Richard Harfist of the Detroit Motor Transportation Emergency committee said.

OHIO LIQUOR STORES LOSE INSURANCE

Policy Cancelled Following $54,000 Losses by Theft

COLUMBUS, June 2.—(AP)—The state of Ohio now will be the sole loser in the event of thefts from the state's 216 liquor stores. State Liquor Director Don A. Fisher disclosed yesterday that cancellation by the National Surety Company of their insurance on stocks in the liquor stores had left the state without any financial protection in the event of burglaries.

He said the insurance was canceled after theft losses for the last nine months totaled approximately $54,000.

The insurance, calling for a $60,000 premium payment for three years, was taken out last August. Fisher said the state has received a refund of approximately $43,000 to cover unexpired part of the policy.

Fisher explained that unless some other company makes a "reasonable" offer, the state probably will have to go without insurance on the liquor stocks at least until the installation of American district telegraph burglary alarm systems in all stores is completed this month.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled today that orders of the War Labor Board are not reviewable by the courts.

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP)—Regulations limiting occupancy of war housing to essential incoming workers today had been removed in Piqua, Sidney and Troy, in Ohio.

Hundreds Are Overcome In City Streets By Gas

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Approximately 150 of an estimated 1,000 persons felled by escaping chlorine gas in Brooklyn yesterday were under treatment in hospitals today as authorities began an investigation of the accident.

No fatalities were reported from the fumes which seeped from a 220-pound steel cylinder on a delivery truck and billowed out over a radius of half a dozen blocks in a busy downtown section.

More than 350 men, women and children were taken to seven hospitals. Most of them were allowed to go home after treatment.

Scores of others were treated at makeshift first aid stations set up in stores, gasoline stations and nearby homes.

As the fumes spread, people toppled to the ground like flies, eyewitnesses said, while others were sent into violent spells of choking, coughing and vomiting.

Many of the victims were subway passengers, affected when the gas descended through ventilators into two subway stations. Hundreds of passengers were made ill and fled to the streets where they, too, were overcome.

HERBERT GIVES UP; CONCEDES TO MAYOR

Attorney General Bows To Stewart; Recount Stops

COLUMBUS, June 2.—(AP)—Thomas J. Herbert gave up today.

The attorney general conceded the nomination for Republican governor to Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati and called off all requests for recounts in the May 9 primary.

He sent a message of congratulation to the mayor who defeated him by only 2,372 votes—the tightest major race in the history of Ohio—and said he would give his support to the ticket in November.

Herbert withdrew his requests for recounts of some 200 precincts in Cuyahoga County and 65 in Franklin County. A recount of all 777 precincts in Hamilton County stopped Wednesday with less than half of them retabulated.

WAR IN CHINA GROWS SERIOUS

Elsewhere in Far East, Japs Getting Worst of It

(By The Associated Press)
The Japanese have concentrated 280,000 troops to pry the Chinese loose from the Hankow-Canton railroad and to clear the way for new blows elsewhere in China, a Chungking military spokesman said today.

In manifest alarm over Japan's widespread offensives in north-central and south China, Maj. Gen. C. C. Tseng said the enemy had embarked on a new strategy: "As the Allies apply greater pressure against Japan, Japan will exert greater pressure against China."

Greater pressure against Japan seemed imminent in the Central Pacific, on the strength of a three-day aerial offensive which took U. S. fliers to the Kuriles north of Japan, to Wake, Guam and the string of Caroline Islands including Ponape and Truk.

Such far-reaching raids might be the forerunners of a new fleet-borne offensive in the Central Pacific, the intent being to immobilize enemy bases adjacent to the principal target. This strategy was followed in preparation for the Marshalls invasion last January.

A big battle was brewing along the Hankow-Canton line for possession of strategic Changsha in Hunan.

Plea For Leniency In War Aims Made By Pope In Speech

Pontiff Also Warns That 'Whoever Would Dare Lift a Hand Against Rome Would Be Guilty of Matricide,' but Adds Eternal City 'Receiving More Considerate Treatment' from Air Raiders

LONDON, June 2.—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a speech to the College of Cardinals, expressed hope today that peace soon would appear on Rome's hills and over the whole world but added that a demand for total victory might prolong the war.

In an Italian language broadcast the Pontiff called on the victors to give hope and faith to the vanquished, and declared that "whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide."

Speaking as contending armies surged within sight of Rome, Pope Pius said that anyone lifting a hand against the Eternal City would "have to bear a grave responsibility toward future generations."

The Pontiff said many persons fear the theory of "full victory or complete destruction" and that this "operates with a bad influence as a stimulus prolonging the war and also on those, who following their internal impulse or for realistic considerations, would be inclined to a reasonable peace."

A fear of the enemy's determination "to destroy national life down to the roots suffocates all other arguments and brings about . . . a courage of desperation," he said.

"Those who feel this," the Pope continued, "advance as in a hypnotic sleep amid unspeakable sacrifices and compel all others to an exhausting and bloody struggle, the social, economic and spiritual consequences of which threaten to become the scourge of future times."

He said Rome was receiving "more considerate treatment" from air raiders.

"We cherish the hope," the Pope continued, "that this more just and moderate tendency will prevail . . . and that the city will in all cases and at whatever cost be preserved from becoming a theater of war."

He warned, however, that "we do not hesitate to repeat once more with equal impartiality and dutiful firmness that whoever would dare lift a hand against Rome would be guilty of matricide before the present world and

TWO WAR AGENCIES GET FULL BUDGET

Lend-Lease and UNRRA Given Approval

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—The house appropriations committee gave the lend-lease administration and the new world relief setup, known as UNRRA, a blanket approval today, recommending to the full membership the identical 1945 budget the agencies requested.

The committee reported to the house legislation providing: For lend-lease—$3,450,570,000.

For UNRRA—$450,000,000 for this nation's participation in the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration with additional authority for the president to transfer to it $350,000,000 in lend-lease funds which might not be needed immediately.

For the Foreign Economic Administration, the agency charged with waging economic warfare against the enemy $19,500,000, a reversion of $1,381,000 from the FEA's budget request.

175,000 AIRPLANES MADE IN 3 YEARS

President Reveals Record of U. S. Production

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today the United States has produced more than 175,000 airplanes in about three years.

In the first 91 days of this year, the president said, 4,400 planes were sent to our Allies from the United States—at an average of 338 planes a week.

In making public the report from the Foreign Economic Administration, Mr. Roosevelt recalled that some doubting Thomases scoffed when he told congress before the war that the administration's goal was to produce 50,000 planes a year.

The goal, he said, has been exceeded tremendously.

GERMANS TAKE OVER BULGARIAN CONTROL

Balkan Nation Threatened by Russian Onslaught

LONDON, June 2.—(AP)—Formation of a new Sofia government, headed by a strongly pro-Axis premier, was announced last night by Berlin—a move that apparently brought Bulgaria definitely into the fold as a German puppet state.

A broadcast transoceanic dispatch said the new regime was headed by Ivan Bagrianov, a former minister of agriculture who resigned three years ago after rejection of his proposal that Bulgarian farm economy be placed completely under state control, as in Germany.

The Bagrianov government replaces that of Premier Dobri Bojilov, who resigned last week under pressure from Berlin to increase Bulgaria's war contribution and warnings from Moscow that Bulgaria get out of the conflict or suffer the consequences.

Bulgaria is at peace with Russia. Neutral reports have said that since Bojilov's fall the Germans have been pouring troops into the country and have integrated them with the Bulgarian Army for a defense against the expected new Russian offensive.

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

How would you like to have a butterscotch pie sandwich?

Never heard of one did you say? Well, as a matter of fact, I do not think anyone else ever did until one day this week.

Charles Rinehart, who has spent many years in the restaurant business and is one of the proprietors of the "Sky-scaper" Restaurant on West Court Street, told me about the new delicacy.

A boy walked into the "Sky-scaper" one evening this week, and asked for a piece of butterscotch pie. Charles passed out the pie.

"Gimme two slices of whole wheat bread" said the boy. The two slices were set before him. The boy took the pie, placed it between the two slices of bread, and proceeded to eat the new-fangled sandwich. Charles admits that he stood almost speechless and watched the boy devour the butterscotch pie sandwich.

"I've seen 'em eat about everything, but I never saw anything like that" declared Charles in telling the yarn.

This plea comes from a resident within two miles of the city and it is to heartless Washington C. H. citizens to cease taking their dogs out along the highways near the city and abandoning them.

"Nearly every day for the past two weeks we have had one to three strays left along the road by the owners and the dogs naturally come to our house in search of food and shelter.

"I think such people are heartless and they should be ashamed of themselves, not only to abandon their dogs but to dump them out along the roads to annoy other people," said the woman making the complaint.

That reminds me we have a county dog warden, and persons having dogs that they wish to dispose of may get in touch with him and he will come after them.

Abandoning dogs near some residence in the country seems to be just about as common as the practice of abandoning surplus kittens used to be, inflicting them upon someone residing along the highway.

25 OVERCOME BY GAS IN HOLD OF VESSEL

Carbon Monoxide Accident Follows Chlorine Gas

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP)—Ambulances, two emergency squads and radio cars were dispatched by police today to a Brooklyn pier where 20 to 25 men were reported overcome by carbon monoxide gas in the hold of a ship.

The latest gas accident occurred as approximately 195 persons remained in Brooklyn Hospitals suffering from after effects of chlorine gas which affected an estimated 1,000 persons yesterday.

MRS. SUSAN FITE RESIGNS POST AT HIGH SCHOOL

Health To Take Her from Class Room After 17 Year's Service

Mrs. Ed Fite, whose name for nearly two decades has been synonymous with sophomore English in Washington C. H. High School, will not be back in her familiar classroom when school opens next fall.

Her resignation, which she said she submitted because of her health came at the end of her 17th year of teaching in the high school—17 years which have included being advisor to the junior and senior classes as well as her classroom duties. "I have truly enjoyed teaching—I hate to be through with it," Mrs. Fite said. "Children have such an optimistic viewpoint and it's good to be around them and their gaiety," she commented, adding: "I tried to teach through the war."

Before her marriage, Mrs. Fite taught in Greenwich, Bucyrus and Georgetown schools.

TIME LIMIT ON PARTY LINES IS PROPOSED

Union Township Council IV Meets Thursday Night

Limiting the time of conversation on rural telephone party lines was proposed when Union Township Farm Bureau Council IV met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Warner Thursday night.

Charles Van Pelt was discussion leader for the program, which included ceiling prices, post-war conditions and subsidies as well as the party-line subject. Whether or not the council will have an exhibit at the fair this year will be decided at the group's next meeting July 6 with Mr. and Mrs. William Lucas.

Jo Ann Van Pelt and Jo Ann Pope were guests at the meeting, which was preceded by a potluck supper.

In order to increase the council's membership, it was voted that five families which had recently become members invite five additional families, which would bring the organization to full strength of 12 families.

SWEEPING NEW CONTROLS FOR MALE LABOR TO BE PUT IN EFFECT JULY FIRST

Nutt said it had "no relation to any legislation." The WMC National Management-Labor Policy Committee has reaffirmed its conviction, he added, that the nation's manpower needs can best be met under programs voluntarily developed and adopted.

He explained that while the program is on a voluntary basis, sanctions can be imposed in cases of non-compliance. He said workers who refuse to cooperate would find it difficult without a clearance slip to get a job, while employers who do not participate will not have workers referred to them.

"strong male labor" at present, McNutt asserted, are foundries and forge shops, rubber and tire production, ship repair, logging and lumbering. Similar acute shortages, he added, are developing in such fields as textile manufacturing, coal mining and electronic equipment.

To stiffen further the voluntary manpower system, McNutt directed that in the 184 group 1 and 2 areas of serious labor shortage there should be established:

1. Employment ceiling programs fixing the total number of men who may be employed in specific establishments. These programs already exist in about 25 of the areas.

2. Manpower priority committees to decide which industries in their respective areas are entitled to worker priorities. About 35 areas have such committees.

The broadened program provides that USES offices will "expose" applicants to jobs available in the order of their relative importance to the war effort.

MAY RAINFALL VERY 'SPOTTED' OVER COUNTY

Precipitation in This City 2.54 Inches Below Normal

Rainfall over Fayette County during the month of May was decidedly "spotted," and while some areas received more than the normal of 4.18 inches, this city received only 1.94 inches, or 2.24 inches below normal.

For instance part of Fayette County was so drenched on Friday, May 26, that one rain gauge showed three inches of precipitation during the one day.

The same area had received a series of other heavy rains during the month.

Various parts of the county suffered from excessive rainfall, like other areas in this part of Ohio.

Insofar as rainfall in this city is concerned, the month was one of the driest in recent years. Average temperature was about six degrees above normal, being 67.8 compared with a normal of 61.5.

The temperature ranged all the way from 35 on May 5 to 96 on May 30.

and material had been funneled to the front over lines passing through the five tangled yards.

The British-based planes struck the Pas-de-Calais department of France and reported no sign of German fighter opposition.

Fortifications Blasted
Perhaps, 3,000 tons of explosives were unloosed on the French fortifications, with the bombers able to carry maximum loads due to the short trip involved.

Before dawn, Allied fliers struck over 2,000 miles of airways from Scandinavia to France and from Hungary to Crete.

The Pas-de-Calais section, probably the most intensively bombed area in the world for its size, is a scant 25 miles across the channel from England where Gen. Eisenhower's invasion armies are massed and eager. The department extends 90 miles into the French interior and along 35 miles to the coast and contains such familiar points as Calais; the World War I embarkation port of Boulogne; the resort Le Touquet; and Cape Griz Nez, terminal for channel swimmers.

RAF heavy bombers concentrated on southwest French rail yards at Saumur, 150 miles from Paris, and the French coast last night. Mediterranean forces attacked Hungarian yards 30 miles east of Budapest at Szolnok. Mosquitos bombed a target in Denmark and the Russians smashed all German attempts to crack their lines above the old Romanian rail center of Iasi, killing 800 Germans. The Finns reported two strong Soviet attacks on their front.

Battle of Italy

In Italy, the British Eighth Army in the center and right of the erupting front of 90 to 100 miles advanced so swiftly in places that "enemy demolitions could not be effected." They advanced six miles beyond Frosinone and the French threatened to cut behind the withdrawn Germans. The Germans still were gambling every man available in the punctured 25-mile front from Valmontone to the sea.

U. S. infantrymen entered Veltri late yesterday after other Americans virtually had encircled this key German fortress, on the Apennine Way 18 miles from Rome. At noon today "fierce fighting is in progress" in the streets, headquarters announced.

Two miles to the northwest, Yankee troops fighting on Monte Artemisio in view of Rome's historic buildings were meeting "very obstinate opposition," a communiqué said.

A new wedge was thrust into the enemy defense line by capture of Lariano, a village on the highway to Valmontone four miles northeast of Veltri.

The first United States troops struck into Veltri at 5:15 P. M. yesterday and on their march into the town square captured 19 prisoners. Associated Press war correspondent Daniel de Luce reported from the front.

The Germans were said still to be throwing every available man into the defense along the 25-mile line from Valmontone to the sea. Parachute troops have been identified in the Veltri area. Elsewhere the Nazis were said to be using such non-combatant forces as company butchers and horse tenders.

The American force had snaked beyond Veltri and seized the dominating heights of Mts. Peschio and Artemisio, catching the Germans by surprise.

The German high command declared the dent the Allies achieved northeast of Veltri had been "sealed off" with heavy casualties inflicted. Berlin's broadcast said there was fighting of "very great fierceness" Thursday, especially in the Veltri and Valmontone areas, but that the Allies had been held.

The smashing blows against the Nazi line guarding Rome also drove in another wedge by capture of Lariano, a village on the highway to Valmontone, four miles northeast of Veltri.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had flung his touted Hermann Goering armored division into the line near Valmontone in a bitter struggle to hold open the Via Cassina.

The British and French to the southeast squeezed tighter up the highway, and the French seized Ponte di Morolo, three miles below the famous road, west of Frosinone.

Along the coastal flank of the battle for Rome, naval guns again supported the British, bombarding enemy batteries near Ardea with successful results.

falling to the sidewalks. Rescue efforts began within a few minutes after the gas first was detected.

More than a score of ambulances were dispatched to the scene along with police and fire units. A police detail visited every home in the area seeking possible victims.

The gas came from one of 20 tanks on the truck, operated by John G. Golliver, 45, of Brooklyn, who told police he detected fumes and stopped the vehicle. Discovering chlorine escaping from one cylinder, he asked a pedestrian for aid in removing the tank but was overcome.

He then called police who donned gas masks and removed the tank to the curb.

Inspector Joseph Barbuto of the fire department bureau of combustibles said he had obtained summonses against Golliver and the truck owner, Lester J. Denner, charging them with transporting chlorine through the streets without a permit.

PLEA FOR LENIENCY IN WAR AIM MADE BY POPE IN SPEECH

in front of the eternal judgment of God."

The Associated Press listening post in London reported the reception was excellent. The Pope's voice was described as being forceful, calm and clear. Listeners said the Pontiff's "eloquence reached a peak of emphasis when he expressed the hope that Rome would be spared the horrors of war."

Quoting an historian of the 19th century, the Pontiff said Rome has good reasons before the world to be respected and left untouched. Rome has known terrible days in its history, he continued—in the 16th century, in the 18th and on many other occasions.

"On all these occasions the popes of the times succeeded in avoiding catastrophe and rescued and opened their doors to refugees of all creeds of all nationalities," he said.

"But what were the number of 6,000 or 7,000 refugees compared with the thousands of today?" "To the last of our enemies, and helped by so many good people, we intervened often," the Pope said. "In spite of the violations of our rights we have tried to help the population of Rome and its surroundings supplying them with food."

"We have also started negotiations in order to bring food by way of the sea. But the consent of one belligerent still is awaited." Continuing, the Pontiff said: "We have tried everything in order to spare Rome one of the darkest moments in its history. It is our supreme duty to follow the rules of our Lord as Peter did."

"In all the nations of the world there is a want for the future new order. But this new order must be supported by just and well balanced moral and material guarantees."

"Hopes for a future peace would be better based and more realistic if there were not so many religious movements which have departed from the Christian church and created separatist churches."

ADMINISTRATION ALLIED WITH CORRUPT POLITICS, GOV. BRICKER CHARGES

outside its legitimate field of action.

"It is time that the American people became aware of what is going on and see that it is stopped short in its traces. I call upon Congress to act at once to stop the subversive use of money to corrupt the approaching election by the CIO Political Action Committee."

"When has it become the legitimate function of a labor organization to so interfere in elections that it can make a minority supreme over the majority of the people? If any political agency—yes, if any governmental agency—were to interfere in union elections to deprive union members of their exclusive right to determine union policies, there would be ground for legitimate complaint and righteous indignation."

"Labor has the right to discuss issues, to participate in government and to vote in elections as any other group of citizens—but it has no greater right. The whole people of this country vote for president and elect congressmen. No one individual or group has the right, by any sort of threat or intimidation, or through the power of the purse, to thwart the will of the entire people."

Without mentioning any names, Bricker said "one of the most serious indictments of the New Deal is the charge that it has thwarted free voting in this country," and he added:

"It has used political patronage, governmental benefits and political favors and privileges to pressure groups to win both nominations and elections. The formula is a simple one—spend and spend, elect and elect."

"But they spend our money. Indeed, the New Deal has gone even further. It has formed political alliances with notoriously corrupt political machines—like Tammany of New York, the Hague machine of New Jersey and the Kelly machine of Chicago. . . .

"There is increasing evidence that the New Deal proposes to use the same old technique . . . this year. This time it looks like an alliance with Sidney Hillman's CIO political committee as well as the notorious political machines."

The governor said the New Deal would be "utterly defeated" in November if there was a "free election," and he added "that is why it is reforming its alliances with Tammany, the Hagues, the Kellys, the Sidney Hillmans, and Communist elements in this country."

For lasting whiteness USE DU PONT self-cleaning HOUSE PAINT
Paint Protects America
Du Pont House Paint is the whitest paint you've ever seen—but that's not all. Du Pont House Paint protects against decay, rust, and rot—so important now that conservation is the order of the day!
Starts white, stays white
Du Pont House Paint is made with titanium dioxide, the pigment that's whiter than snow! So your house, newly painted with this remarkable paint, starts dazzling white. Further, it stays white, because . . .
It's self-cleaning
All paints collect dirt on exposure. But, with Du Pont House Paint, "self-cleaning" starts after a few months of normal weather conditions. A fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash this away, carrying the dirt with it—leaving the newly exposed surface clean and white again! (Unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions in extremely sooty industrial communities may, of course, delay this process.) Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.
Despite this remarkable quality of Du Pont House Paint, it costs no more than other good paints.
DU PONT HOUSE PAINT $3.25 in 5-gallon lots GAL.
We will be glad to recommend a reliable painter. He knows how to do the job right, how much or how little paint to use. His skill means savings for you—and paint conservation for America.

FOR PROTECTION THAT LASTS

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACMURDO

British Prime Minister Churchill's unexpected pronouncement of "kindly words about Spain" is causing puzzlement, not unmixed with concern, in this country.

Pro-Nazi Spain continues to give Hitler material aid with which to wage war against us. Her position is not identical with that of some pro-Allied neutrals which have been forced to serve the German tyrant. That raises a problem which is likely to get hotter before it cools.

The average American's reaction to this issue seems to be controlled mainly by the fact that the Allies are about to undertake the greatest and most hazardous amphibious invasion of history. He is uncomfortably aware that vast numbers of the troops which will fight their way up the beaches from the sea on D-Day will be our boys.

Mr. Churchill's gesture advanced the thesis that Spain had contributed to the United Nations' cause, among other ways, by resisting Nazi pressure to take over Gibraltar and close the Straits, and by ignoring the huge Allied preparations close to the Spanish coast for the invasion of Africa. Thus Spain made backhanded amends for some of her irregularities toward the Allies.

There are many reasons why Britain should want to win Spain over. Churchill named several, including the hope "that she will be a strong influence for the peace of the Mediterranean after the war." At another point he said:

"I look forward to increasingly good relations with Spain and extremely fruitful trade between Spain and this country, which I trust will grow during war and expand after peace."

Well, America wants friendship with Spain, too, but our viewpoint appears to be somewhat different. Despite Mr. Churchill's speech, President Roosevelt later expressed the opinion that Spain's shipments of supplies to Germany haven't yet been reduced enough.

It strikes me that our average citizen, in considering Spain's attitude, is likely to demand first, an answer to two questions:

1. Does Spain's shipment of supplies to Germany mean loss of life to American soldiers?

2. Is it possible that these supplies will protract the conflict, thereby causing further death and destruction, and wastage of the resources of many nations?

The answers to these queries are so obviously in the affirmative they need no discussion. With these before him, the average citizen is inclined not to give a Tinker's dam about anything else.

He believes the Allies are powerful enough to compel Spain to recognize that it pays to be good. He thinks we have the right to do that.

BIBLE SCHOOL WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK

A special Children's Day program Sunday night, June 11, will climax the Bible school, he added.

MOST OF MEAT TO REMAIN OFF RATIONING LIST

Armed Forces Taking More Butter But Supply Still Considered Good

All meats now ration-free will continue so during the period through July 1, the Office of Price Administration said in announcing these principal changes in the point values on other commodities:

Canned carrots, orange juice, grapefruit juice and blended orange and grapefruit juice are added to the long list of point-free processed foods.

All varieties of cheese and cheese products are reduced two points a pound to a new value of 10 points.

The ration cost of canned evaporated and condensed milk is halved, dropping from one point for a pound to a half point.

The only increases ordered are for pineapple juice, up three points to 15 for a No. 2 can, and grape juice, boosted four points to 10 for a pint container.

Butter stays at 12 points a pound and margarine at two points.

Choice beef steaks and roasts continue to be the only meat cuts requiring ration stamps. Values are unchanged with one exception: Chuck steaks and roasts are cut two points a pound. Flank steak remains point free.

All Grade D beef is removed from rationing for the June period, but OPA said very few steaks and roasts of this lower quality are sold at retail. Most of the meat from these animals is made into hamburger and sausage.

More For Civilians
In continuing the ration-free meat bargains, the agency said over-all civilian supply for June averages 310,136,000 pounds a week, a 9.6 percent increase over the 282,859,000 pounds a week in May.

Beef, veal, lamb, mutton and variety meats will be in more plentiful supply in the new period. Pork, while still coming to market in amounts exceeding demand, will fall slightly in volume.

Allocations of cheese for June total 67,000,000 pounds as compared with 55,000,000 pounds for May, accounting for the two-point reduction in ration values.

An increase to 50 percent in the butter set aside for the army and navy reduced the monthly allocation for civilians to 133,000,000 pounds from 145,000,000 in May, when 40 percent of production was put aside. This tightens the supply, but the over-all distribution situation "is regarded as good," OPA said.

It explained that the point value of evaporated milk is being cut in half because with most meats removed from rationing only 30 red points instead of 60 are being validated each month.

"Evaporated milk is an important item in infant feeding and halving the point value will permit purchase of the same amount with 30 points as previously could be bought with 60."

Fruit Juice Scarce
The point increase for pineapple juice and grape juice reflects short supply and too rapid movement into consumption. Slow movement on the other hand, brought the addition of carrots to the list of point-free canned vegetables. Carrots go to a zero rating from three points for a No. 2 can.

In making citrus juices available without ration stamps, OPA said the supply this season was larger than had been expected and that the new pack was about a month ahead of schedule.

Current values, eliminated, beginning Sunday, are three points for a No. 2 can of orange juice, one point for a No. 2 can of grapefruit juice, and three points for a No. 2 can of blended orange and grapefruit juice.

Democracy's Crisis

In the discussions brought on by this war and also those regarding postwar plans, we hear it said often that democracy is slipping; that pressure groups and others organized for selfish purposes, are making it difficult for democracy to make the same progress in the future that it has in this nation and some others in the past.

Most of those who offer this opinion are not suggesting any particular remedy, nor are they apparently urging that this and other governments give way to dictators or totalitarian methods. Rather they see human selfishness crowding out the great advantages which democracy offers because, they say, most people have lost sight of the "golden rule."

In this connection Clyde R. Miller of Columbia University, in a recent magazine article, declares "our democracy has a 60-40 chance to survive the next ten years." And then he tells a story of what some communities are seeking to do to insure its preservation.

"If we can get even 10 percent of the people to think clearly," Dr. Miller adds, "we shall have produced enough leaders in America to offset the influence of charlatans and demagogues."

When Miller returned in 1934 from watching the Nazi rise in Germany, he told friends: "You can't combat intolerance by preaching or exhortation any more than you can combat smallpox by saying that it is bad."

To combat any similar upheaval in his own country, Miller determined upon action. "Why not analyze a town," he reasoned, "and then do something about its faults."

The "Springfield Plan," inaugurated in 1940 was the result. Springfield, Mass., was chosen for the experiment because it was a typical conservative community. It had a good school system, whose superintendent, John Granrud, appointed a committee of nine to ferret out Springfield's problems.

Pupils were being taught that we have already achieved perfect democracy in America, the committee reported. Then, learning by experience that this was far from true, they became disillusioned. A new program was evolved to combat this condition.

In the elementary grades, the program tackled class prejudice. The students learned to know the people they studied, found that people in a community must work together in order to live.

In junior high school, students of foreign extraction wrote plays about the life and times of their forebears. Everyone studied the life stories of famous immigrant Americans.

To combat religious intolerance, study of the great religions was introduced. The children attend Protestant, Catholic and Jewish services.

Senior high school students got down to cases on problems of government, employment discrimination, and propaganda. They analyzed newspapers and magazines, used their democratically elected student government as a laboratory to study democracy.

Today's Horoscope

If today is your birthday, you have considerable literary ability, and should develop it. You are impulsive and your mind is intuitive and imaginative, rather than analytical. You are devoted to your home and family, and will make a happy and pleasant home life of your own. Your next year presents many auguries for success, which you should neither neglect nor allow ambition to spoil. Be mindful of others. Born today a child will achieve quite unique success and fame in some direction or other, possibly connected with one of the arts. Older people may cause trouble, however.

As Springfield progressed, other towns became interested. Pittsburgh adopted the program; Boston and New York are considering it.

Professor Miller warns us that Springfield will not achieve Utopia immediately. The only answer is to plug away year after year. However, Miller is betting on the people to put it across.

Maybe he has hit upon a solution. Anyway the idea is worth some consideration in any community.

A brightener for those who view the post-war readjustment period with gloom can be found in the report that a match has been perfected which will strike and burn even when soaking wet.

Flight Officer Jackie Coogan, ex-screen star, reports Burmese natives thought he was a god when he descended on them in a glider. But apparently none of them asked for his autograph, tore the buttons off his coat, wore bobbie socks or swooned. How primitive!

Hearing Loss Seen as Coming Problem

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE ADJUSTMENTS which the post-war planners must consider are only partly economic or social. I should say as a rough estimate that at least a third of the planning will have to consider medical problems. Some of these are plain for all to see and consider—the cripples, the blind, the nervous wrecks among the veterans of combat. Numerically they would hardly justify my estimate of a third of all postwar problems being medical.

But there is another, less obvious and much more numerous, group of medical liabilities which will come out of the war. They are in both combat and civilian groups. They may not realize for a long time what the war has done to them. But still subtly and perhaps to them unaccountably it will have changed their whole lives.

As an example of this is a report I have before me by Lieut. (J. G.) J. C. Howard, M. D., on tests of hearing made on men who have seen combat service. It is by no means a cheerful account.

The conclusion is that post-war America has an excellent chance of being in part a hard-of-hearing America, because of acoustic trauma. It applies to those who have gone to work in war industry as well as to those in the armed forces. And it thus hits particularly the young adult between the ages of 18 and 35 who in the past has been particularly free of auditory difficulties.

Damage of Noise

Damage to hearing from the assaults of noise has in the past been identified by the medical profession with certain trades—such as boiler makers, riveters, blasters and those make up only a fractional part of the population.

The damage to hearing in this group is mainly in the higher frequencies, starting above 3,000, which means deafness for high tones, but in the course of time this spreads fanwise on the chart until it reaches the level of conversational ranges.

World War I had little effect on the hearing of the members of the armed forces. It was short and comparatively not so very noisy. The English, French and German troops showed a good deal more loss than ours. This war has increased the pace of mechanical warfare and with it noise. Besides, altitude flying adds its burden as well as the barometric pressure of submarine existence.

Protective Devices

Studies in the hearing acuity of the personnel of airplane and submarine services show that the amount of damage depends on the ability of the individual's hearing apparatus to stand pressure, the amount of exposure, and, best of all, the amount of rest between periods of duty. The use of protective devices is also a factor.

"Trap shooter's ear" has been so designated by sportsmen familiar with the situation. The trap shooter is hard of hearing in the ear that is next to the gun. The same phenomenon is found in machine gunners and those using the ordinary army rifle. The big gun crews get it in both ears. In the news reels you see the gunners at the discharge of a big gun holding their mouths open: this is plain common sense and experience as well as the result of instruction in protection. It equalizes the pressure on the middle ear through the Eustachian tube.

The prolonged use of quinine for those in malarial countries also does the hearing apparatus no good.

The onset of diminished hearing due to these causes is gradual and often unrealized by the individual. Lieut. Howard found on examining men picked by chance, not because they complained of loss of hearing, that at first the acuity was dimmed for frequencies above 4,000 (coin-click) and seldom got so bad that it was diminished for the low tones (whispered voice).

The radio, movie and television world may well take these findings into account. The high tones—screams and the like—will be lost on much of the post-war population.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. J. K.—My little boy is three years old, and weighs 33 pounds, 38 inches tall. Do you think he is too thin? I have been buying certified milk for him, and because it is raw milk, have been boiling it. Do you think this is necessary?

Answer: Average height and weight at three years is 36-38 inches and 29½ to 31½ pounds. Certified milk need not be boiled for a three-year-old; he is over the most dangerous age for milk infection.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

They were approaching a one-story white stucco building on whose walls oversized red devils danced and from whose roof cut-out flames of wood shattered the sky. The tubing of the unit neon sign spelled out VIC CARLATTI'S Hot Spot. The parking lot to the side was empty except for one small car.

Look at what?" demanded Ellery. "That lone parked car," said Pat, a little pale.

Ellery frowned. "It does look like Haight's car."

"It is."

Pat drove up to the entrance, and they jumped out.

"It might be business, Pat," said Ellery, not with conviction. She glanced at him scornfully and opened the front door.

In the chrome-and-scarlet leather interior they saw a bartender and a man mopping the postage-stamp dance floor. Both looked at them curiously.

"I don't see him," whispered Pat. "He may be in one of those booths . . . No."

"The back room . . ."

Ellery pushed against a partly open red-and-gold door with a heavy brass lock. It swung noiselessly, revealing the gambling room.

In a chair at the empty roulette table sprawled Jim Haight, his head on one arm on the table. A burly man with a cold cigar stub in his teeth stood half-turned away from Ellery at a telephone on the far wall.

"Yeah, I said put Mrs. Haight on the wire, stupid!" The man had luxuriant black brows which almost met and a gray flabby face. "Tell her Vic Carlatti."

"Stupid!" would refer to Albert. Ellery stood still against the red-and-gold door.

"Mrs. Haight? This is Mr. Carlatti of the Hot Spot," said the proprietor in a genial bass. "Yeah . . . No, I ain't making no mistake, Mrs. Haight. It's about Mr. Haight . . . Now wait a minute. He's sittin' in my back room right now . . . Now don't get bothered, Mrs. Haight. Your man's okay. Just had a couple of shots too many and passed out. What'll I do with him?"

"Just a moment," interrupted Ellery.

Carlatti slewed his big head around. He looked Ellery up and down. "Hold on a second, Mrs. Haight . . . Yeah? What can I do you for?"

"You can let me talk to Mrs. Haight," said Ellery, crossing over and taking the phone from the man's furry hands. "Nora? This is Ellery Smith."

"Ellery!" Nora was frantic. "What's the matter with Jim? How did you happen to—"

"Don't be excited, Nora. Pat and I were driving past Carlatti's and we noticed Jim's car parked outside. We're in here now and Jim's had a little too much to drink."

"I'll drive right down the—station wagon—"

"You'll do nothing of the kind. Pat and I will have him home in half an hour. Don't worry, do you hear?"

"Thank you," whispered Nora, and hung up.

Ellery turned from the telephone to find Pat bending over Jim, shaking him.

"It's no use," growled Carlatti. "He's carrying a real load."

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, getting him tight!"

"Now don't get tough, babe. He came in here under his own steam. I got a license to sell liquor. He wants to buy, he can buy. Get him outa here."

"How did you know who he was? How did you know whom to call?" Pat was fizzing with indignation.

"He's been here before, and—don't you gimme that fishy eye!"

Pat gasped.

"Excuse me," said Ellery to Pat. He walked past Carlatti as if the big man were not there; then suddenly turned and stepped hard on Carlatti's bulldog toe. The man belched and reached swiftly for his back pocket.

Ellery set the heel of his right hand against Carlatti's chin and pushed. The Hot Spotsman's head snapped back. As he staggered Ellery punched him in the midriff with the other hand. Carlatti sank to the floor, clutching his middle with both hands.

Ellery yanked Jim out of his chair and got him in a fireman's grip. Pat picked up Jim's crushed hat and ran to hold the door open.

In the open car, with the wind striking his face and Pat shaking him, Jim began to revive. He goggled glassily at them and sank lower in the seat, muttering.

Ellery at the wheel saw through the rear-view mirror that a car was overtaking them rapidly—Carter Bradford's car.

Ellery slackened speed to let Bradford pass. But the lawyer slowed down alongside and honked his horn. A lean gray Yankee type with a red face and fishy eyes sat beside him.

Obediently, Ellery pulled up at the side of the road; and Bradford stopped his car, too.

Pat said: "Why, hello, Cart," in a surprised voice. "And Mr. Dakin! Ellery, this is Chief Dakin of the Wrightsville police. Mr. Ellery Smith."

The Chief said: "How-do, Mr. Smith," in a polite voice, and Ellery nodded.

"Anything wrong?" asked Carter Bradford, a little awkwardly. "I noticed Jim here was—"

"There's nothing wrong, Bradford," cut in Ellery.

"Nothing that a good night's sleep won't fix," said Chief Dakin dryly. "Carlatti's?"

"Something like that," said Ellery. "Now if you don't mind, gentlemen, Mr. Haight needs his bed."

"Anything I can do, Pat . . . Cart was flushed. "Matter of fact, I was thinking of calling you up—"

Jim stirred between Pat and Ellery, mumbling. He opened his eyes again. They were still glassy, as he glared from Pat to Ellery and the men in the other car, but he did not recognize any of them. The mumble became intelligible: "Wife—my wife shot—blame . . ."

"Ellery, get him home!" cried Pat.

Ellery released his hand brake quickly. But Jim was not to be pressed. He pulled himself up and shouted, "Ride of her! Wait!"

"I'll get rid of her! I'll kill 'er!" Chief Dakin blinked. Prosecutor Bradford opened his mouth to say something.

But Pat pulled Jim down and Ellery shot the convertible forward, leaving Bradford's car behind. Jim began to sob, and suddenly fell asleep again.

Pat shrank as far from him as he could. "Did you hear what he said, Ellery? Did you?"

"He certainly don't know what he's saying," said Ellery, stepping hard on the gas.

"It's true, then," moaned Pat. "The letters—Rosemary . . . Ellery, I tell you Rosemary and Jim are in cahoots to—to—And Cart and Chief Dakin are in on 'em!"

"Pat," Ellery kept his eyes on the road. "I haven't wanted to ask you this before, but . . . Has Nora any considerable money, or property, in her own right?"

Pat moistened her lips very slowly. "Oh . . . no. It couldn't be . . . that."

"Then she has."

"Yes," Pat whispered. "By my grandfather's old Pop's father, Nora automatically inherited a lot of money when she married, held in trust for her, if and when. Grandfather Wright died soon after Lola eloped with that actor—held out Lola off because of that, and divided his estate between Nora and me."

"How much did Nora get?" asked Ellery. He glanced at Jim, stertorously asleep.

"I don't know. But Pop once told me it's more than Nora and I could ever spend. Oh Lord—poor Nora!"

"Is this inheritance to you and Nora a secret?"

"Try to keep a secret in Wrightsville," replied Pat.

Ellery turned Pat's car into the Hill drive. "Now, we'll put Jim to bed," he muttered.

The next morning Mr. Queen was knocking at Nora's door before eight. Her eyes were swollen. "Thanks for—yesterday. Putting Jim to bed while I was being so silly—"

"Rubbish," said Ellery cheerfully. "There hasn't been a bride since Eve who didn't think the world was going under when hubby staggered home under his first load. Where's the erring husband?"

"Upstairs shaving," Nora's hand trembled as she fussed with the glowing toaster on the breakfast table.

"May I go up? I shouldn't want to embarrass your sister-in-law by prowling around the bedroom floor at this hour—"

"Oh, Rosemary doesn't get up till ten," said Nora. "Please do go up—and tell Jim what you think of him!"

Ellery went upstairs. He knocked on the master-bedroom door, which was half-open, and Jim called from the bathroom: "Nora? Gosh, darling, I knew you'd be my sweet baby and forgive—"

"Morning, Smith. Come in." Then he added sheepishly, "How did you know about yesterday?"

"How did I know! Why, Pat and I brought you home."

"Gosh," groaned Jim. "I wondered about that. Nora won't talk to me. Can't blame her. Say, I'm awfully grateful, Smith. Where'd you find me?"

"Carlatti's Hot Spot."

Jim shook his head. "No wonder Nora's sore." He grinned. "Was I sick during the night? Nora fixed me up, but she wouldn't say a word to me. What a dumb stunt!"

"You did some pretty dumb talking on the ride home, too, Jim."

"Talking? What did I say?"

"Oh . . . something about 'getting rid of the wife.'"

Jim blinked. He turned back to the mirror again. "Out of my head, I."

Ellery nodded, his eyes fixed on the razor. It was shaking.

"I don't remember a thing," said Jim. "Not a blamed thing."

"I'd lay off the booze if I were you, Jim," suggested Ellery amiably. "Not that it's any of my business, but . . . well, if you keep saying things like that, people might misunderstand."

"Yeah," said Jim, fingering his shaved cheek. "I guess they would at that. Ow, my head! Never again!"

"Tell that to Nora," laughed Ellery. "Well, mornin', Jim."

"Mornin', and thanks again."

Ellery left, smiling. But the smile vanished on the landing.

It seemed to him that the door to the guest room was open a hands-breadth wider than when he had gone in to talk to Jim.

Washington at a Glance

By JACK STINNETT

DES MOINES, Iowa—Whether Republican Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper is catapulted into the Washington picture by being elected over Sen. Guy M. Gillette, Democratic incumbent, isn't nearly as important as the fact that no candidate in the grass roots with the possible exception of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio is so much in the public eye.

You might as well meet Gov. Hickenlooper now. Sooner or later you probably will. I met him in his office just off center of the golden dome in Iowa's old-fashioned state house.

Unlike a lot of politicians, Gov. Hickenlooper isn't all vest front, imposing stature and broad shoulders. He's a down-to-earth fellow, who likes to criticize the economics of the New Deal in the terms of a complaint from his six-year-old daughter.

She got the idea that the family, in addition to the car they already had, should buy a snappy convertible coupe. Very patiently the governor explained that money didn't grow on trees and they couldn't afford it.

"But Daddy," said his daughter, "all you have to do is go to the bank and write a check. They have plenty of money."

That's the kind of economics and politics that almost any one can understand but it isn't the governor's sole stock in trade. He has theories that could be written into a handbook for politicians.

One is that no man ever "wins" office. He succeeds because he is able to knock the opposition off his chair. This last is important because it explains Gov. Hickenlooper's feelings about the present administration.

When public sentiment, he says in effect, builds up to the point that it is weary of the policies and administration of the incumbents, then the personalities and politics of the opposition are hardly important.

He won't go so far as to say that the voters

PARKING ZONES WILL BE WIDER IN CITY SOON

Angle of Head-in Zones To Be Changed When Striping Done

Work of applying traffic stripes to the streets of the city will get under way as soon as weather permits, and the parking zones in the up-town area to be made somewhat wider and the "zone lines" are to be given more slope so that parking will be easier.

For some time City Manager Stambaugh has been studying the parking problem, and has reached the conclusion, advocated by many people for years, that more slope should be given the head-in zone lines so that vehicles could enter and leave the parking zones with greater ease, and without backing so far into the streets to leave the zones.

Much of the trouble of drivers failing to park their cars within the zones has been due to the sharp angle of the lines, it is believed, and this has been responsible for much parking over the lines.

Parking zones in most cities, it is pointed out, have easier parking zones by reason of the greater slope of the zone lines, and the change here is expected to meet public approval.

By allowing two to four inches more to each parking zone, Stambaugh points out that very few parking places would be eliminated, and that four to eight inches more between cars would be provided.

The wider zones and greater slope of the zone lines should eliminate a great many damaged fenders by reason of careless drivers, it is believed.

Twice this week the street crew has been ready to start the striping work, and each time rain interfered.

TWO SOLDIERS IN TROUBLE HERE

One Arrested and the Other Escapes by Running

Ray W. Fite, from Clinton Air Field, was fined $10 and costs on a drunk and disorderly conduct charge, in Justice George H. Worrell's court, Friday morning, and a John Doe warrant was issued for another soldier from the same field, who was accused of starting a disturbance at the Loudner Barbecue, about 10:30 P. M. Friday night, and then came to Washington C. H., where Fite was arrested and the other man escaped.

Sheriff W. H. Icenhower was called after one of the soldiers allegedly had struck Delbert Carr at the Loudner place, and found the man and another soldier at Stone's Grill where he informed them they were under arrest.

The man who had done the fighting insisted upon seeing the Sheriff's badge, which he had left on his coat, and when the sheriff stepped out to get his badge, the soldier came out of the place and started running.

Sheriff Icenhower and others gave chase, the officer firing his pistol twice in the air, but the soldier escaped.

Friday officers from the Clinton Field came here to investigate the affair and furnished Sheriff Icenhower with the name of the soldier who was in trouble, and he will be brought back here for punishment.

Officers from the field said the man wanted was Jim Whitt.

To what extent the Grange will help pay the expenses will not be determined until court costs are announced, it is said.

Next Thursday night, 16 new candidates and two reinstated members will be given degree work at the Marshall Grange Hall. Most of the lecture hour was devoted to practicing for the initiation ceremony which will be preceded by a potluck supper.

Plans for serving the Jeffersonville Eastern Star supper June 21 were completed at the meeting with the submission of the menu.

At the next regular meeting of the grange, a cookie baking contest will be featured. Grange women will enter one dozen fruit and oatmeal cookies, baked according to a recipe delivered by Loren Hynes, county grange deputy. Mrs. Hynes is county home economics committee chairman.

HEAVY RAINFALL IN LOCAL AREAS

Showers Bring Relief from 'Unusual Humidity'

While this city escaped with a comparatively light shower, early Friday morning, some parts of the county, including part of Marion and Madison, as well as the New Holland area, received a real drenching, with the result that water stood in the fields for hours after the rain.

Other rains halted corn planting and other work in the fields for two or three days in the area struck by the storms.

A great deal of thunder accompanied the rains Friday morning, and additional rains were expected later in the day.

Cooler weather and less humidity followed the early morning rains.

Friday the mercury reached 88 degrees, but the humidity was such that a great deal of suffering resulted, and complaints were general, many people believing the temperature was much higher than it really was.

A low of 66 was recorded Thursday, and at 8 A. M. Friday the reading was 69 degrees.

ONE VACANCY IN CITY SCHOOLS, MURRAY SAYS

World History Post in WHS Only Empty Place in Five Schools

Only one vacancy, aside from the principalship of the high school, today remains in the city school system, Superintendent A. B. Murray announced. The world history post in the high school is the one empty place in the faculties of all five schools.

"It's rather an oddity," Murray commented as he pointed out that all teaching positions in the elementary schools were filled. "In fact, it is the smallest number of vacancies we have had in recent years," he added.

The world history position was filled temporarily this year by W. W. Jackson of Columbus, Murray said as he announced other changes.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood will teach sophomore English and Spanish I and II next year instead of the seventh grade science and Spanish combination position which she filled last year. The sophomore English was taught last year by Mrs. Susan Fite, who is retiring, Murray said.

Mrs. John Alton will teach seventh grade sciences during the coming school year. She had been teaching general science in the high school since Clyde Cramer resigned early in the year, he explained.

Mrs. Janet Allen Blake will absorb the general science class and will teach it next year in addition to the biology which she has taught, Murray said. Enrollment in the two classes has dropped with boys and girls leaving school for industry and with the decreased enrollment, it is possible to combine the two science courses.

FORMER RESIDENT HAS CLOSE CALL IN BLAST

William McNeal, former blacksmith at Johnson's Crossing, who for many years has operated a general store on Route 50 at Slate Mills, had a narrow escape from serious burns when a gasoline pump in front of his store exploded while gas was being placed in the tank of an automobile, Wednesday afternoon.

Joe McGinty was near the pump at the time, but the two men escaped the burning fluid, although partly stunned by the force of the blast. A pumper from Chillicothe went to the scene, but hand extinguishers had put out the fire before it arrived.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Glad you dropped in, Judge. I was just trying to explain to Mary what you told us down at lodge last night... about all the grain used to distill war-alcohol not really being used up. She didn't realize it, either."

"It's true, Mary. Wherever the government has permitted distillers to purchase the equipment necessary to reprocess the used grain, at least 50% of the feed value (25% by weight) of the whole grain is being recovered and returned to farms like yours in the form of premium-quality livestock feed. Only the starch is removed during distilling... the part recovered is a highly-prized concentrate containing valuable proteins, fats and carbohydrates. The distilling industry really has taken a leading part in the development of new cattle and poultry feed products from reprocessed grain... products rich in vitamins B1 and B2... so essential to satisfactory growth and production. And the recovery of grain will apply also to the making of whiskey when production is resumed."
